Mazda Included in Dow Jones Sustainability Asia Pacific Index for Third Year Running

HIROSHIMA, Japan—Mazda Motor Corporation has been included in the Dow Jones Sustainability Indices' Asia Pacific Index for the third year running.

The Dow Jones Sustainability Indices are among the longest-running<sup>1</sup> ESG investment indices<sup>2</sup> in the world. Corporations are assessed annually in the areas of environmental initiatives, social contribution, human resource development, corporate governance and compliance, and only those with outstanding sustainability performance in their industry are included.

Mazda was selected on the basis of a survey questionnaire and a comprehensive review of the company's Sustainability Report, Annual Report and official website that highly evaluated Mazda's CSR initiatives and information disclosure practices. Mazda was one of 76 Japanese companies and two automotive companies chosen from among approximately 600 major corporations assessed for inclusion in the DJSI Asia Pacific Index this year.

In addition, Mazda won a Bronze Class award in the SAM Sustainability Awards 2019<sup>3</sup> as an outstanding company in the automotive industry. RobecoSAM decides award winners based on the results of the previous year's evaluations for inclusion in the Dow Jones Sustainability Indices.
